Mending Clothes For Overseas

Sometimes there's a button missing or a bit of repair work to do before clothing can be given for overseas relief, and Mrs. R. E. Hicks (left) and Mrs. G. I. Watt (right) spent a busy morning Tuesday getting a large shipment of clothing ready. As members of the Seventh Day Adventist Church they are cooperating with a community effort to collect items for overseas relief. Others interested in helping are invited to bring clothes to the Appomattox Presbyterian Church where they will be boxed and taken to a Farmville collection point. The Peruvian earthquake has depleted supplies of used clothing and more is needed in several countries.

Old Eyeglasses For New Vision

Old eyeglasses no longer used can become new glasses for someone else. The Old Dominion Eye Bank and the Eastern Virginia Lions Clubs leave no stone unturned to bring restored or corrected vision to eyes which are blind or weak.

The Lions conduct a continuing program to collect unused and discarded eyeglasses, regardless of the type of lens. The Eye Bank, in turn, acts as coordinator of the program.

As of now, the Lions have collected more than 46,000 pairs. They are first sent to a classification center where the corrective powers of the lenses are determined and graded. Then they go to a repair center to be put into good condition.

The eyeglasses are then sent to distribution centers in the United States and throught the Free World, as well as to centers serving the "New Eyes for the Needy" program. The glasses are given to those who otherwise could not afford them.

Those willing to donate used eyeglasses should contact any member of the Lions Club. At the same time, they may also pledge their eyes to be donated after death for sight-restoring corneal transplants. Donor cards are also available from the Old Dominion Eye Bank, 408 North 12th St., Richmond, Va.

Abbitt Hails Tobacco Bill

WASHINGTON – Representative Watkins M. Abbitt (D-Va.) today hailed Congressional passage of legislation providing permanent authority for lease and transfer of tobacco acreage allotments as "a constructive step which will strengthen the tobacco program."

The bill, sponsored by Congressman Abbitt, replaces the present temporary authority which expires at the end of this year. The House passed the bill on May 18 and the Senate approved it on June 8.

Abbitt said the bill, which applies to flue-cured tobacco, will provide a stronger foundation for the allotment program in that "it makes it possible for those with small, uneconomical allotments to make these available to someone else or to acquire sufficient acreage by lease to make their work worthwhile."

The Congressman pointed out that in Virginia last year there were 7,255 tobacco leases and transfers, involving 14,700 acres. There were a total of 21,576 allotments in the state, comprising 61,000 acres, most of which was flue-cured tobacco. Dark-fired tobacco already has permanent authority for lease and transfers.
